It was what the House might expect from a gallant son of a gallant State. So far as he had knowledge the statements were correct. Mr. REOK said that from the remarks of the gentleman lim. Purters it was applied for, as he would not executed the law, and he had said-yesterday. He had the letter read because the gestionan was an officer of the Covernment, and had a right to be heard here, and before the country, the maintained what he said yesterday, that he had not executed the law, and had held four millions back a year after it was applied for, as he would also when an opportunity presented.
